

- 1909 Mark Twain, “The man who wrote the plays was not merely myriad-minded, but also myriad-accomplished.”
- 1922 James Joyce, Ulysses 48, “Tides, myriadislanded, within her.”
- 1909 Ezra Pound, “Appear more myriad-jewelled marvellous.”
- 1923 D. H. Lawrence, “like an octopus, but strange and sweet-myriad-limbed octopus.”
- 1817 Samuel Coleridge, “Our myriad-minded Shakespeare”
- 1921 Walter de la Mare, “Their myriad-mirrored eyes Great day reflect.”
- 1864 Alfred Tennyson, “The myriad-rolling ocean.”
- 1859 Alfred Tennyson, “Then came an old, dumb, myriad-wrinkled man.”